A review was made of the relationships between the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA), and other executive agencies in the conduct of the regulatory programs for research, reactor safety, and domestic and international safeguards. The interagency memorandums for regulatory research involve the Commissions use of ERDAs light water reactor safety research facilities and use of national laboratories for general research and technical assistance. The first memorandum, which is the model for all others, gives NRC control over the design and management of its research; however, ERDAs responsibilities under the memorandum could affect NRCs research. Although the first memorandum specifies broad principles and general working relationships, the agencies have not formally agreed to detailed operating procedures for conducting NRCs research nor have they agreed on procedures for promptly resolving disagreements between them. The interagency agreements and procedures for domestic and international safeguards involve NRCs issuance of export licenses for nuclear materials, facilities, and equipment; safeguarding responsibilities at licensed facilities which also do work under an ERDA contract; and use of ERDAs laboratory for special nuclear material analytical services. Under arrangements between NRC and executive branch agencies for reviewing export license applications, NRC is limited in its ability to make an independent regulatory evaluation of whether an export would be harmful to the common defense and security of the U. S. This item ships from La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
