So that if a student is not learning what they are expected to at each grade level, appropriate interventions can be applied so that student does not fall behind. However, there are several approaches that can be taken in assessing these students that are taught in their Native language. One of those includes using Native language assessments, as well as accommodations in assessing those students to help them with taking the tests in a language that may not be the Native language, if the state or the school chooses to use an assessment that is not written in the Native language, as well as alternate assessments that can be developed that are given in a more simple manner for those students. NOUYE Senator I. In other words, you do not have any examination that is conducted in Native languages Ms. M. It is up to each SEA to develop assessments ARBURGER and there is actually a specific budget item that is given to the states for assessment development. The SEAs then determine how they use those funds to develop assessments in order to meet the requirements of No Child Left Behind. So they can choose to develop Native language assessments. We have several states who have chosen to do that. NOUYE Senator I. But it is not standard Ms. M. Once again, it is up to the discretion of the ARBURGER state....
