First, we show how intuition alone may not be sufficient to handle the complex and dynamic interactions characterizing the software project environment, and may indeed mislead us in deriving the wrong lesson regarding staffing policy. Second, we show how the experimentation capability of the model may be utilized to derive additional learning dividends from what continues to be a seriously under-exploited software project lesson regarding undersizing. Third, the model uncovers a well-disguised lesson, a case where too much of a good thing, such as quality assurance, was bad. Introduction There is a silver lining to every failure.
